

The Key Principles of Teaching and Learning in Science

Learning should be linked to real life, and misconceptions should be challenged.

Children are given opportunities to explore and engage in their own learning.

The teacher feels confident and has good subject knowledge.

Resources are stimulating, and of a high quality.

The teacher conveys enthusiasm for the subject.